

Curriculum Vitae: Jes Kristian Jørgensen

Born October 22, 1975 in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Married with two children.

Professional address:

Centre for Star and Planet Formation
Niels Bohr Institute & Natural History Museum of Denmark
Copenhagen University
Øster Voldgade 5-7, DK-1350 Copenhagen K., Denmark

E-mail jeskj@nbi.ku.dk; Phone +45 3532 4186

Group homepage: <http://youngstars.nbi.dk>

Employment

- 01/2010- Associate professor (lektor), Univ. Copenhagen: Niels Bohr Institute (2011-) and Natural History Museum of Denmark (2010).
Tenured since 10/2013
- 06/2007-12/2009: Staff scientist, Argelander Institute for Astronomy, Univ. Bonn, Germany
- 10/2004-05/2007: Post doctoral fellow, Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, USA
- 11/2000-09/2004: Ph.D. student, Leiden Observatory, Leiden University, The Netherlands

Education, Awards and Recognition

Ph.D. astronomy, Leiden University	10/2004
M.Sc. astronomy, University of Copenhagen	11/2000
B.Sc. physics & astronomy, University of Copenhagen	06/1998

Silver-medal of The Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters	11/2015
European Research Council (ERC) Consolidator Grant	01/2015
Lundbeck Foundation Junior Group Leader Fellowship	01/2011
Hubble Fellowship (awarded but declined)	02/2007

Achievements

- 150 papers published in international, peer-reviewed journals (23 as first author) with ~7000 citations (h-index of 49) as of February 2017 according to ADS (Google Scholar: ~7800 citations; h-index of 53).
- 32 invited/review talks at international conferences.
- 32.7 MDKK brought in as PI on funding applications.
- Primary supervisor for seven Ph.D. students (three current), nine M.Sc. students (one current), nine post docs (two current) since 2010.
- PI or leading co-I on a number of large observing programs at highly competitive international facilities.
- Invited or elected member of a number of international committees – e.g., the European Southern Observatory (ESO) Science and Technology Committee, the organising committee for division H2 of the International Astronomical Union (IAU) and the management committee for the EU COST action CM1401 “Our Astro-Chemical History” (working group co-leader)